Work experience

Senior Engineer – Data shepherd, IT-Department, UiO, Oslo*January 2020 – present*

Supporting research groups with data management and analysis. Some of these tasks include setting up data pipelines, creating dashboards for interacting with data (R shiny), design automated reports (HTML, PDF) from questionnaires using R markdown and Quarto, and data processing with Python. I have heald introductory courses workshops in R, and machine learning (both in Python, as well as deep learning).

Senior Advisor – Analyst, Norwegian Tax Administration, Oslo*August 2019 – December 2019*

Created statistical reports in various projects. Wrote SQL code to extract data from in-house data warehouses to be used in fraud detection. Started creating an unsupervised model (topic modelling) to extract themes that may better describe different categories of working industries.

PhD (Research fellow) in clinical neuroscience

Department of Psychology, University of Oslo and NORMENT

June 2015- June. 2019

My doctoral research mainly revolved around elucidating depression heterogeneity and identifying biomarkers using advanced brain imaging methods, clinical and genetic data, working with international researchers. In later projects, I used machine learning applications in big data, as well as a wide range of multivariate statistics. I have also been involved in writing and data analysis of several external projects. In addition, I taught introduction courses in research methods at bachelor and master level.
